What a lively group showed up in Bakersfield for the SW Spring Section. There were rivers to run, tours to take, FAA Seminars for Wings Credit among other things. The last minute add on tour to the California Aeronautical Academy....very impressive for those of us on the tour...Wow, 3 years of year-round school, come out with 6 ratings and a BS degree in Aeronautical Science. They will be adding Dispatcher and A & P courses soon. Located there at Meadows Field, next class start this summer, dorms on site with a cafeteria.....talk about aviation immersion!! Ask us about the wonderful Basque dinner at Noriega's or the kid's Strolling Strings entertainment at the Saturday night dinner. At the end of the Saturday morning business meeting, Michael and Alice pinned their incoming replacements.

Wonderful news from our student pilots, both Katrina E. and Sophia have won more scholarships. Yea, go you two!!! They are both going to have exhausting summers with all they are involved in with aviation and some school projects. Give them a pat on the back when you see them.

Happy Mother's Day and expect you all enjoyed a wonderful May Day on the 1st!!

Blue Skies and speedy Spring Tailwinds!!

Joanne

AEMSF (Amelia Earhart Memorial Scholarship Fund) trustees selected Sophia Taylor-Home to receive a Fly Now Award.

April 17, 2018 – Southwest jet, Flight 1380

A Southwest Airlines jet lost an engine after it blew apart at 30,000 feet over Pennsylvania traveling 500 mph. Metal pieces sprayed through the fuselage and into the cabin rupturing a window behind the wing and fatally injuring a passenger seated nearby. The plane experience the most serious and rare type of engine problem called an uncontained failure in which rapidly spinning parts break off and end up penetrating the engine's outer casing and front cover.

Investigators said the captain, Tammie Jo Shults, took over control from the co-pilot. She first asked air traffic controllers for permission to land at the nearest airport, but then aimed for Philadelphia, where the crippled plane made an emergency landing.

Who is this amazing female pilot with the nerves of steel? Tammie Jo Shults was determined to “break into the club” of male military aviators. One of the first female fighter pilots in the U.S. Navy, Shults flew training missions as an enemy pilot during Operation Desert Storm, while working with other women to see a rule excluding them from combat flights repealed. She was among the few to learn to fly the F/A-18 Hornet, a single-seat jet and the Navy's premier strike fighter aircraft, a privilege reserved for elite pilots. Women aviators were excluded from combat missions until the month after Shults got off active duty in March 1993.

(Information for this brief report were taken from the Santa Cruz Sentinel, Wall Street Journal, and internet.)

FAA statistics show that the percentage of pilots who are women has increased.

Year	Total Pilots	Total Women Pilots	Percentage
2008	613,746	37,981	6.2
2016	584,362	39,287	6.7
2017	609,306	42,694	7.

Mercury 13

Mercury 13 Release Date: April 20, 2018

Mercury 13 is a remarkable story of the women who were tested for spaceflight in 1961 before their dreams were dashed in being the first to make the trip beyond Earth. NASA's 'man in space' program, dubbed 'Project Mercury' began in 1958. The men chosen – all military test pilots – became known as The Mercury 7. But away from the glare of the media, behind firmly closed doors, female pilots were also screened. Thirteen of them passed and, in some cases, performed better than the men. They were called the Mercury 13 and had the 'right stuff' but were, unfortunately, the wrong gender. Underneath the obsession of the space race that gripped America, the Mercury 13 women were aviation pioneers who emerged thirsty for a new frontier, but whose time would have to wait. The film tells the definitive story of thirteen truly remarkable women who reached for the stars but were ahead of their time.

Available now on Netflix. Access the "Search" feature to find it.

Wally and seven other ladies of the Mercury 13 took part in the making of this documentary. Unfortunately, the other 5 ladies are no longer living.
